

Can you put backpacks in supermarket lockers

Overview

Some stores have designed a place where shoppers can leave their bag safely and take it after shopping. Now, even where backpacks are accepted, bringing them into the store may not be a good. When it comes to backpacks in supermarkets, the policies can vary from store to store. It's important to familiarize yourself with the rules and norms to ensure a smooth and hassle-free. Most stores in my area are probably just used to seeing me with a backpack on at this point, but what I always make sure to do because I'm terrified of someone accusing me of stealing is this; Pretty dumb I have to consider all of this and make it part of my usual shopping pattern/habits, and. I'm wondering if Grocery Outlet can legally refuse to let me shop unless I leave my backpack at the counter, which to me appears to violate my 4th Amendment rights. They claim it is store policy, but they only enforce this on individuals with backpacks, not women with shoulder bags or purses. Hold it in your hand like a briefcase. Others only want to look at what's inside at the checkout.
